Short-term effects of an alphacalcidol containing cholestyramine on plasma and bone levels of calcium and phosphorus in dialysis patients. In a double-blind placebo-controlled cross-over study the short-term effects of an alphacalcidol (ALPHA) tablet containing 1.5 micrograms ALPHA and 10 g of cholestyramine (CHOLEST) was studied on plasma and bone levels of calcium and phosphorus in dialysis patients. During a dialysis run lasting at least for 5 h, several blood samples were drawn under drug and placebo conditions. To prevent the absorption of ALPHA, CHOLEST was administered 30 min before ALPHA. After CHOLEST administration the ALPHA plasma level did not change. CHOLEST increased the plasma calcium level, but the increment was less than 2 mg/dl. ALPHA decreased the plasma calcium and increased the plasma phosphorus levels. The change in the plasma calcium levels was more pronounced in dialysis patients who had a normocalcemia (Ca^{2+} less than 8 mg/dl) when CHOLEST was administered
